

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A bug collection apparatus for use when a design modification is made to a bug in a drawing designed by using a computer aided design system, the apparatus formed by a first means for detecting whether the modification to the bug exceeds a pre-established criterion, and a second means for collecting and recording a bug information corresponding to the modification when the first means detecting that the modification exceeds the pre-established criterion.

10

On the first morning of my trip off to the coast, I was up early to catch the bus to the beach.